Honor For Lancaster Boy.

Will H. Noel a former Lancaster boy but for the past few years a resident of Knoxville Tenn., is fast rising in the commercial world. Upon the death of the manager of the large wholesale grocery house in which Mr.
Noel has been employed as head bookkeeper for several years, he and one other young man were appointed entire managers of the business, which is a very high honor, considering he got the position without applying for it and there were over forty applicants for the place. Mr. Noel has full charge of the finances.

We hope he will continue to rise as we are always glad to hear good reports from a home boy.

Beazley.

On Tuesday morning Mr. W. B. Mason received a telegram containing the sad news of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Beazley, widow of the late Geo. R.
Beazley.

She died on February 21st at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. L. Austin at Berryville, Ark., of pneumonia and the remains were shipped to this place for interment in the Lancaster cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Elder F. M. Tindler at the cemetery Thursday.

The deceased was a sister to Mr. W.
G. Dunn of Marksburg, Ky., and Mrs.
Thos. Richards of Stanford and an aunt of Mrs. W. B. Mason of this city and Mr. C. L. Dunn, of Chattanooga, Tenn. She was 70 years of age having resided in Garrard county all her life
until a few years ago when she removed to Arkansas with her daughter.

She was well known and had many friends in the county being promi-nently connected. Life will never be quite the same to those who knew her, while those who were nearest to her will long for her with unutterable longings, long for a mothers council, love and advice. She was a strong christian character, patient, loving and self-sacrificing. Her daughter, Mrs. F. L.
Austin is very sick and was unable to accompany the body here.

Election Contested.

The local option forces in Nicholasville have filed in the Jessamine county court a petition contesting the election which was held there on February 15th and which resulted in the town going wet by a majority of 35 votes.

The petition alleges in substance that the language on the ballot was misleading, ambiguous and contradictory; that the election was held on the 15th of February, which was a time
other than a November election, and no special registration was held not less than five days prior to said election; that a number of persons were not required to show their registration certificates; that persons who were not registered, or who were registered illegally, were voted and counted; that the voting booth in one precinct was not inclosed on three sides and for that reason the votes were not secret ballot; in one precinct voters were permitted to vote and had ballots cast outside the booth, which ballots were received and counted; the chief of police, who the petition says was in favor of the sale of liquor, took an active part in the election, and one of the city policemen was also an election officer and gave out information at the door of the booth; that persons other than officers of election were permitted to come and remain within less than fifty feet of the polls, in two precincts voters who were neither blind
nor illiterate showed and exhibited their ballots and said ballots were not secret ballots; that in two precincts persons were permitted to vote who did not reside in the precincts, and were not qualified voters; the officers of election in two precincts did not take the oath to discharge their duties as such officers; and, lastly, that cards of instructions for the guidance of the election officers were not posted at or near the polling places.

Monday is County Court day, a large crowd is expected in town.

Enemies.

Go straight on and don't mind them.
If they get in your way walk around regardless of their spite. A man who has no enemies is seldom good for anything; he is made of that kind of material which is so easily worked that every one has a hand in it. A sterling character is one who thinks for himself, and speaks what he thinks; he is always sure to have enemies. They are as necessary to him as fresh air;
they keep him alive and active. Live down prejudice by right doing. If you stop to dispute, you do but as they desire, and open the way for more abuse. Let the poor fellows talk;
there will be a reaction if you perform
but your duty, and the sparks, which if you do not blow will go out of themselves, and those once alienated will flock to you and acknowledge their error.

Interviewed.

Our representative, Mr. J. O. Bogie was interviewed at the Kengarian hotel Wednesday night by a representative of this paper and made the statement that he was for the County Unit
bill and had always been for it and expected to vote for it when it is placed on its passage. He further stated that he had treated the County Unit bill as he had all others voting against making it a special order, as he saw no reason why it should be given preference over other bills that were of greater interest to the taxpayers.

He also stated that for two weeks he voted to make the County Unit bill a special order, but as it seemed to be the temper of the house not to do it,
he decided that it was useless to waste further time by voting to make it a special order when his vote did not effect the situation one way or the other.
Mr. Bogie says that he stands ready to vote as he promised he would
before the election.

Our Town.

The name of our town stands for a picture in the minds of all who have lingered even for a few fleeting days
within the charm of its wondrous beauty
It stands not alone as a present picture but as the future ideal to its own loyal citizens.

It is unique among its sisters in this state, as an ideal city of homes even as the county is unique for its wealth, fertility and manifold attractions.

Men here take pride in their homes.
The word "home" next to that of "mother" is the greatest ever uttered by human tongue. What a refuge the home is when the darkness gathers!
How glad one is to get a glimpse of home when time and space have separated him from it if even but for a brief period.

The business here represented, is on so solid a foundation, as to insure perfect credit if needed. The banks have a combined capital; surpassing other towns. They are ably officered, co-servatively managed and are adding their full quota toward the development of every industry.

The doctors, lawyers, dentists, dry goods men, grocers, clothiers tailors hardware merchants, jewelers, lumber and implement dealers, harness
shops, drug stores, meat markets,
creamery, telephones systems, Furniture dealer, produce houses, tobacco
warehouses, grain dealers, coal dealers,
restaurants, hotels, water system,
electric lights, mills, millinery establishments, barber shop, laundry, livery stables, blacksmith and repair shops—all these are displaying an aggressiveness that is truly worthy of commendation.

Improvements of various kinds are continually being made, lawns are being cared for in an inviting manner,
church influences are wholesome, social influences elevating and inspiring,
home influences a benediction, educational influences the most helpful.

Man meets his fellows here with a
"Good morning, James; how are you feeling this morning?" while the answer is waited back on the morning
breeze: "Quite well, I thank you!"
The good women, as they toll the greater part of the day in looking after the domestic duties, hum a merry tune the while, because "love lightens labor." And over their tea cups at an afternoon function, or around some family circle, banded together as a club they discuss topics alone intended to elevate their race.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce Hon. Harvey Helm a candidate to succeed himself in Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

There is probably more controversy in the Kentucky Legislature over the regulation of the sale of intoxicating liquors than any other question upon which definite legislation is proposed. This fact alone keeps up public interest in a matter that so vitally affects the general welfare. But since a number of neighboring communities which are made option units under the existing temperance laws, have again submitted the question to election, the general results of those contests and the status of the temperance cause in the state makes more acute public interest.

The Government's right to regulate the sale of liquor is no longer questioned, and the right to regulate includes the right to prohibit the open saloon. But whether or not the government should license the sale depends upon the wishes of a majority in some definite territory. The existing option bill makes the county the unit of decision in all counties, except those having cities of the first, second, third and fourth class. We favor the proposed option bill making the county the unit without regard to the city, or class of city. Why not? The county is the unit in the enforcement of law, and all the people of the county are taxed to defray the expenses. As a matter of right, should not every citizen in a county have a voice in regulating a matter that so vitally affects the consumption of his taxes; otherwise, it is a form of taxation without representation. It is now too well established for argument that the increased use of intoxicants, likewise increased crime. It is very expensive to the public to prosecute criminals. One may consistently favor the proposed bill and yet favor the saloon, for the purpose of the legislation is only to enlarge the unit, still leaving it to a majority of the voters, whether liquor shall be sold. The fight between those opposing the open saloon and the whiskey people has been going on in this state for years. Every battle has not, by any means, been a victory for the temperance people. Yet in summing up, the balance is largely in favor of the local optionist. The fact that there will be no local option bill by the present Legislature, that Somerset, Paris, Winchester and Nicholasville have by small majorities returned to the open saloon is no reason for discouragement. The waning of public sentiment on all great public questions will make no exception of the temperance cause, but as the sea tides ebb and go, we think there will come in a temperance current ere long that will effectively sweep away what now appears to be a small victory for the saloon.

A good deal has been said in recent years about forestry and one great mind after another has studied this subject until today a bureau of Forestry has been organized in so efficient a manner that from a small beginning eight years ago it has grown to the proportions of an economic department of the government. It controls millions of acres of land; administers many and varied business interests; governs wisely diverse industries and people, saves for the central government a constantly increasing revenue and conserves for future generations the natural wealth of lumber, grazing, mineral and water power, committed to its care.

One of the most important questions being argued today is, whether the cutting away of forests effects the amount of rain fall? Willis L. Moore, chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau has been making investigations along this line and has arrived at the conclusion that forestation has little or nothing to do with the amount of rainfall. The tendency today is to convert forested to cultivated fields. Prof. Moore advises it to be preserved for itself, but at the same time wants to impress that they have nothing to do with creating or augmenting droughts in any part of the world. He claims floods are caused by excessive precipitation and the precipitation over the central and eastern portions of the U. S. is the vapor borne by the warm southern winds from the Gulf of Mexico and the adjacent oceans into the interior of the country. However this opening is at variance with the theories of the Forest service and the popular view of the subject. This theory has been accepted only as the opinion of one man of scientific attainment, so the government is having thoroughly discussed and decided before two many of our forests are cut away, whether or not the forests influence our climate and rainfall.

Senator Hubble.

Is this general caustic criticism of our Representative in the Upper House at Frankfort just? That Senator Hubble has used his vote upon every opportunity to prevent the extension of the County Unit law is the cause of this manifest public disapproval of his course. We disagree with our Senator upon this public question and regret that he does not view this important legislation as we do. But the fact that a citizen does not agree with his representative on a public question, does not alone justify such arraignment as some have given Mr. Hubble. The Senator was nominated by the Democratic party, with his party platform silent upon local option, and his opponent for the nomination declaring in favor of the County Option bill, and charging Hubble with being in favor of the licensed saloon. He was elected at the general election with a republican opponent, and it was openly and publicly charged in this city by him and many others that the democratic nominee opposed the extension of the County Unit bill, and that he was a whiskey man. None of these charges, so far as we have been able to learn were previous to the election ever denied by Senator Hubble.

In fact, those opposing the proposed county unit bill voted for and supported Hubble with the understanding that he would vote as he is now doing, and the temperance people expected, or should have expected the same vote. Our Senator is not guilty of embracing representative power, but on the contrary is voting as the general public expected him to do. If the option people, either democrats or republicans would expect their respective representatives at Frankfort, to assist in extending the temperance legislation, we think it wiser to nominate those pledged to the cause previous to the election, rather than to depend upon resolution and general criticism to coerce a representative who has previously pledged to the other side.

The murder of Hiram Hedges by night riders some two years ago will be recalled. That two years passed before anything like a vigorous investigation of this atrocious crime was taken up is lamentable. At last a grand jury in Nicholas county has returned an indictment and it is better late than never. It shows that there are responsible citizens in Nicholas county who have not forgotten or forgiven the atrocity. Whether or not the man indicted was one of the murderers cannot at present be determined but it is the hope of every true Kentuckian who has a pride in his State and an interest in its welfare, and a love of justice that the trial will be conducted vigorously and impartially. It will be remembered that Mr. Hedges was called to his door in the middle of the night and shot down in cold blood by a gang of night riders. Unsympathetic indeed must be the man whose blood does not grow hot at the very thought of such an act.

Every man who honors the good name of "Kentucky" the very name of which suggests beautiful flowers and everything that is pure and just, should join in an effort to punish persons who violate the law. It is your duty to do this. You owe it to your State, to your fellow man, to yourself and to your God.

Do you know the German fable of the horseshoe? The Chicago Horseman prints this story:

"In the olden times, in a little village of Germany, a blacksmith was hard at work. The sound of the anvil attracted the attention of the devil. He saw that the smith was making horseshoes and thought it would be a good idea to get his own hoofs shod. So the devil struck a bargain and put up his hoof. The smith saw with whom he was dealing and nailed on a red hot shoe, driving the nails square into the hoof of the devil. The devil then paid him and left; but the honest blacksmith threw the money into the fire, firmly believing it would bring him bad luck. Meanwhile the devil walked some distance and began to suffer the greatest torture from the shoes. The more he kicked and danced and swore, the worse the things hurt him. Finally, after he had gone through the most awful agony, he tore them off and threw them away. From that time forward, whenever he saw a horseshoe he would run away feverishly, anxious to be out of sight of the things that had tortured him so."

The German peasantry all believe this story today, and one can scarcely find a doornail or a barn that hasn't a horseshoe nailed above it.

Friends of the Hon James I. Hamilton are urging him to announce as a candidate for the democratic congressional nomination. He has assisted many nominees of the party in this county in carrying the parties flag to victory, in fact, there hasn't been many political contests for the past fifteen years that he has not been one of the most active and earnest members of the party in bringing success to the organization. He is a past master in the game politics, and with his pluck and indomitable energy, and power of leadership, we believe that, should he decide to enter the fight, the other aspirants for the nomination will soon learn that the Garrard County candidate is full-worthy of their consideration. His friends think it our time to furnish the nominee of the party, since this county has not had the honor so long a time.

A side light on those things responsible for the present depleted condition of the State Treasury has been brought out by the investigation now on, and having to do with the management and condition of the Kentucky militia. From the testimony of witnesses, it has been developed that the State spent, during the night rider troubles, a total of $190,000 in sending State troops to first one place and then another, and in many instances without any request having been made to the Governor to send troops. It has been developed that the bill of one liveryman alone, for horse hire to militia men, and not including feed, was more than $10,000. This is looked upon as rank extravagance on the part of Governor, brought about by poor judgment on his part. It is generally conceded that little or no good was accomplished by means of the State militia during the night rider troubles. —Shelby News.

Democrats all over the country will be happy to hear that Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, is improving, and will likely recover from a recent attack of paralysis. Senator Tillman is one of the most picturesque and honest statesmen of our nation and the country can ill afford to lose such a man at any time.

Lovers' Lane.

In April, when the moon is full, How many a dress of bright delaine Goes arm in arm with some dark coat Along the woods by Lovers' Lane!

The newly-plighted farthest roam And latest in the wood remain; But bride and bridegroom seldom leave The homeward end of Lovers' Lane.

Sometimes a troop of children stray And follow in their parents' train, To pick the sweet anemones That grow so thick in Lovers' Lane.

Sometimes a lady walks alone, With head inclined, as if again She heard a voice to us unknown: (She seems at home in Lovers' Lane)

A stranger, banished long ago From this green path, forgives his pain, And sends a little prayer to heaven For all who walk in Lovers' Lane.

The Burley Tobacco Society will undertake to poll the tobacco crop of the current year and a meeting of the district board has been called for March 8th at Lexington to approve the pledge.

Attorney General Wickersham will be called as a witness in the Ballinger investigation to tell what he remembers about a conversation he had with Henry M. Hoyt Attorney General of Porto Rico, about a year ago, over the land claims involved in the investigation.

No opposition to the Hon. Ollie James as the Democratic candidate for Congress in the First district having appeared the committee will meet at Paducah, February 24th and declare Mr. James the nominee. This shows that the people appreciate the good work of Congressman James.

The county unit bill is killed by the action of the Senate in keeping it in the hands of the committee on religious and morals who refused to report the measure. The friends of temperance legislation have practically abandoned all hope of getting a local option bill at the present session.

A delegation of prominent Kentucky negroes, headed by Dr. C. H. Parrish, of Louisville, called upon President Taft Monday to urge the appointment of Albert S. White as Minister to Hayti. The delegation was introduced by Senator Bradley. The appointment was urged on the grounds of the satisfaction it would afford the people of Kentucky, especially the negroes.

The first bill to pass both Houses and go to the Governor was that of Senator Arnett, of Covington, making October 12th a legal holiday under the name of "Columbus Day." The bill was strongly pushed by the Knights of Columbus, the leading Catholic fraternal organization, and was opposed by some Protestant ministers on the plea that it gave undue prominence to a particular organization. The day is a legal holiday in a number of States.

The case of the "prosecutor" in the Ballinger investigation was practically closed last Saturday. When the committee met Mr. Vertrees announced that he did not care to question Glavis further. Mr. Brandt examined Henry M. Hoyt, who corroborated Glavis in important points and after introducing a large amount of documentary evidence, announced that he was practically through. Adjournment was taken until Friday Feb'y 25.

Incensed at the action of the police at Philadelphia, in arresting strike leader, C. O. Spratt, of the carmen union, the Central Labor Union declared a sympathetic strike of all organized labor in the city which means that one hundred thousand laborers will quit work if the order is obeyed. Hundreds of men and boys have been arrested and several killed since the Carmen's strike started on Sunday. The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. says it will fight to the bitter end as is also the declaration of the Union. The company is running cars on the principle lines, but the service is not regular and but few people venture to ride on the cars. The authorities of the city are assured by the national guard commanders that the entire division of State military, numbering ten thousand men is at the service of the city in case the police force is unable to keep peace.

The kickers on the farm are not so hard to get along with as the kickers in town. On the farm there is the kicking cow, and our long eared friend, the mule, while in town there is the old mossback who wants all the municipal improvements without paying for them. The cow may be sold for beef, the mule traded for a shot gun but nothing but a funeral will get rid of the town kicker.

Leroy Percy, of Greenville, was chosen United States Senator from Mississippi on the fifty-eighth ballot of the Democratic caucus by a majority of five votes over former Gov. Vardaman. When balloting was resumed all of the candidates withdrew with the exception of Percy and Vardaman, the vote showing Percy 87 and Vardaman 82. The nomination is equivalent to election.

The Ex-Governor became widely known by his utterance against negro equality and his extreme position as to mob law while Governor of Mississippi.

Getting On.

The man who is not afraid gets on. It isn't the chap who is always carefully trying the ice with a timid foot who skates across the pond; it is the one who, taking all things into consideration, strikes out boldly.

Same way with business. You can't sit still and expect the world to bring its orders in on a silver platter. You have to mix boldness with brains, and go out for them yourselves!

The man who is afraid to take responsibility will never be troubled with taking large profits from his business. The pusher may be obnoxious at times; but the pusher is one hundred percent better than the stand-stiller.

All the feather-bed world loves a lover. But all the business world loves the man who dares—if he does a little thinking along with his daring. Shirking responsibility, holding back so that you may get every possible angle on the question before you go ahead, hesitating, pondering past the psychological moment—these are the things that have kept the failures you know just where they are.

Getting on, means getting busy. It means taking the initiative when others hesitate; recognizing opportunity a square away, and realizing that tomorrow is a day that never gets here! Don't be foolhardy in your energy. But don't forget that the God of Success likes a Goer!

Tell Us About It.

Every newspaper wants to publish the news. The better the paper the more prosperous it will be. Local news items are especially hard to run down. How many times have you dear reader, been approached by the newspaper man for an item of news and told him that you knew nothing of interest. Probably at the time your family were away on a visit or some one from out of town was visiting at your home. Of course you don't mean to deceive the scribe, yet when you received your paper you wonder why your family or friends were not mentioned. A good way to avoid all of this is to kindly inform us of the fact or drop a note in the postoffice to the paper, or telephone us at No. 43. The one item may not amount to much, but several columns of such news is the life of a local paper. See?

His preparation is being made all over the Bluegrass for the tobacco crop of 1920 and in every direction the growers are beginning to turn the soil. The indications are that the acreage put out will be as large if not even larger than in 1919.

Twelve tobacco growers of Grant county were indicted in the federal court, at Covington, Ky., charging them with violation of the Interstate Commerce law. It is charged in the indictment that the parties used threats and violence to prevent one W. T. Osborn from shipping his tobacco to Cincinnati.

The Farmer and His Seed.

At this season of the year farmers everywhere are preparing for the crop of the coming season. At the very beginning of this whole process let them consider more carefully than anything else the character of the seed they are planting.

Determine in your own mind what kind of crop you want. If you are raising corn, consider the corn that is the most profitable and get seed of the kind that you want.

The faith of the farmer is every year to us a matter of admiration. Here he has his capital in his hand. To that capital he must add his labor. He takes the seed that he has bought and puts it in the ground, knowing that there it must rest—dormant—before there can be any possibility of a return.

But so regular are the process of nature, for so many generations has the seed planted in the earth brought forth abundant crops that the farmer without hesitation invests all he has at the beginning of the year in the fortunes of this farm on the basis of this process of nature.

Faith is good. Without it you can't get the most out of a seed. It is the faith of the farmer that makes him a success.

But, therefore, with the careful selection of the seed, whatever you are going to plant. Do not trifle with this important subject. Plant some seed of your own raising, but it is wise always to improve your seed by new seed from other sections, new life, new strains. In selecting your own seed, select the very best of your own products. Discard the faulty or defective. Enough is known now about breeding with animals to make it possible to improve your dairy cows, your horses and your cattle. A like principle applies to your seed. It is the principle of intelligent selection.—Home and Farm.

STOMACH MISERY FOR OVER SIX YEARS

Think of it! After six years of stomach, of gas eructations, of nervousness, during which time every meal lay on his stomach like a lump of lead, a man was restored to perfect health by McRoberts' stomach tablets.

Read what Mr. H. H. H. writes:

"I suffered misery and intense pain from stomach trouble for over six years and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of McRoberts' stomach tablets. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by McRoberts I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better."—Max M. Hoffmann, Webster, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1919.

McRoberts' stomach tablets in five minutes. It acts like magic. It is guaranteed to cure your stomach gas eructations, heartburn, dizziness, biliousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by R. E. McRoberts for 50 cents a large box.

Why Not A Silo.

We want to see the Garrard county farmers get the largest possible profit from their agricultural products. There is no room for arguments as to the fertility of our soil, or that under similar conditions as much can be harvested per acre as any other blue grass county.

It is not wise, in our judgment, for our farmers to look to tobacco alone for profit, and neglect the culture of other crops that may be more profitable, in the near future, than the growing of tobacco. The farmer will find more satisfactory results in the average years business in growing a variety of crops and different kinds of stock, taking care to overstock at no time. It is pleasing to note the interest among our farmers, in such modern methods as will result in larger production and better quality of farm products. In what way will you dispose of your harvest? We can see as much profit in a silo as in any one new undertaking that can be suggested. In the use of the silo, the crop, when it is in the very highest state of nutrition, is cut up and preserved in the state it is in at the time, thus enabling the farmer to have green feed during the winter months. The experiment station of Missouri has the following to say about the silo:

It will keep your stock thrifty and growing all winter, produces fat beef more cheaply than dry feed, enables cows to produce milk and butter more economically, is more conveniently handled than dry fodder, prevents more of your stalks in the manure, furnishes a feed that the stock will relish in the cold winter months, makes palatable food of stuff that would not otherwise be eaten, enables the farmer to preserve food which matures at a rainy time of the year when drying would be next to impossible, and is easily constructed and the expense of building will be more than returned the first year, and because it is the most economical method of supplying feed for the stock during the hot, dry period in summer, when the pasture is short.

BUMPED THE BUMPS

OLD LADY'S EXPERIENCE AT CONEY ISLAND.

Undignified Descent Amused the Crowd and Also Brought Offer of Financial Reward, If She Would Repeat It.

I went down to Coney Island one night. They tell me it's a good place to find missing people. My and, Lizzie, you never see such a place! Such a banging and rattling and music playing and hollering, you'd think all bedlam was let loose! It seems to me that city folks' idea of having a good time is to be bumped and jolted and swished around like plates in one of those new-fangled dish washing machines, which I never could see the use of anyhow.

I was plumb daff with it all. By and by I got so I just followed them in front of me blind like a sheep. There was once when I found myself going up a long narrow stair. At the top you went into a little house-like and everybody was sitting down on dormatins-like, and being shoved through a little door. Then I thought I was in a crazy house for sure and I turned to escape down the stair again, but what with all the crowd pressing up, I couldn't get down, and before I knew it I was sitting down on one of those dormatins myself with my feet sticking out in front of me. I ain't been so close to my feet in years. Then the fellow gave me a shove—Lawdness! Lizzie! It was like falling over a pressypuss in bed! I went down in that there slide faster than the Empire State express!

Having my umbrella in one hand and my knitting bag in the other I couldn't lay hold of anything. All I could do was holler, and that I did right smart. It wasn't like no cellar door you understand, but as crooked as a ram's horn. I slammed against one side, then the other, I slobbered around and lost the doorman, and then I went over a ban-like, and fetched up at the bottom all of a heap, and feeling like grandmother's rag doll! And Lizzie, there was a couple of thousand loafers of both sexes standing there just waiting to see me do it! They let out a roar like the bull of Bashan! I hope they split themselves laughing! Maybe I wasn't mad! I tell you I would have given them a good piece of my mind, only the breath was all shook out of me. I just brandished my umbrella at them, and walked away dignified.

Well, that wasn't the end of it! You'll scarcely believe what I'm going to tell you next, Lizzie. There was a spruce young fellow followed me down the walk and when we got a little ways off, he came up and tipped his hat real polite. "Excuse me, madam," says he, "I represent the management of this here park. We will pay you $15 a week throughout the season if you will repeat that act twice every night."—Hubert Footner, in Putnam's.

His Wife the Boss. The man edged toward the door. For the doctor could stop him he had quietly turned the key.

"No more for me," he said. "What! Go back on your word?" "I haven't! I kept my bargain."

"You haven't paid your price."

"That isn't my fault. I'm not responsible for your mistakes. Besides, I don't see that you can do anything about it. Any exposure would—"

The doctor rushed forward and stopped in front of the man, who looked on imperturbably.

"Aren't you going to give me back my property?" he asked.

"How can I? It doesn't belong to me any more. But, doctor, I'll tell you what I will do."

"Well, well?"

"You drop in and see my wife about it, and I'll be agreeable to anything she says. Good morning."—Chester-ton Todd in Life.

Tangled Home. Mrs. Hasker—How is your friend, Mr. Wallman?

Hasker—Poorly, he's home sick.

Mrs. Hasker—Homesick? Then why doesn't he go home?

Hasker—He is home. Didn't I just tell you he was?

Mrs. Hasker—You said he was homesick, and I don't understand how he can be homesick and home at the same time.

Hasker—I didn't say he was homesick; I said he was home sick."

Mrs. Hasker—You didn't say he was homesick, but said he was homesick! What do you mean by such nonsense?

Hasker (impatiently)—I said he was home and sick at home.

Mrs. Hasker—Gracious! Why didn't you explain in the first place?—Judge.

A Judicial Expert. The native with a stogie met the native with a pipe.

"Howdy, Zeb?" quoth the stogie native. "Heard 'bout th' fuss down to th' court house?"

"Nope," drawled the man with the pipe. "What was it about?"

"Why, Jim Simpson has been suing Abner Hawley for alienation th' affections of his wife, an' Judge Musgrove told th' jury to bring in a verdict of six cents' damages, 'cause he thought that all the damage was worth to Jim. An' Jim's wife got mad an' threw a chair at th' judge, and he had her arrested an' put in th' cooler."

"But didn't th' judge go a little too far when he fixed her value so low?" "Not at all, not at all. Y' see, he was her first husband."

CURRENT VERSE.

No Man Needs to Starve.

At last the good man's temper rose. He swung his stool and deadly blow delivered. Smash! on snarling nose. That forced his flimsy door.

"Twice killed! He skinned it on the spot And clapped the carcass in the pot. Then blew the coals; when they were hot Behind him locked the door.

Set out for town, returned with sack Of onions, salt, white bread and black. And, ah! the whiff, as he came back, Of wolf stew through the door.

"I got nine rubles for his hide And bounty on his ears, beside. It's not a healthy place," he cried, "For wolves before my door."

So here's the nub; don't sit and fret; There's bounty paid on wolf ears yet. Pick up your stool, go out and get That wolf before your door.

—C. L. Edholm, in the Bookkeeper.

The Girl Who Looked Behind Her.

The girl who looked behind her, With shy and timid glance, Such wondrous grace entwined her. She set my heart a-dance.

Then, like a nymph delighted, She vanished in the throng. And left mine eyes delighted, My fancy fraught with song.

The girl who looked behind her, And fled on frightened feet, Though memory hath shined her, I never more may meet.

Another man may better The heart that fled from me— But who could love her better, Whose love more faithful be?

The girl who looked behind her, O may the future bring, Far fairer things and kinder. Than any bard can sing.

Though I may never greet her, I pray my song may find The lass who made life sweeter For him she left behind.

—Samuel Minton, in the Transcript.

Mothers.

We are mothers. Through us in our bondage. Through us with a brand in the face, Be we fettered with gold or with iron, Through us comes the race.

See the people who suffer, all people! All humanity wasting its powers In the hand-to-hand struggle—death-dealing— All children of curs!

Shall we bear it? We mothers who love them?

Can we bear it? We mothers who feel Every pang of our babies and forgive them Every sin when they kneel?

Dare we sleep while our children are calling?

Dare we wait while they clamor unfed?

Dare we pray in the proud-pillared churches While they suffer for bread?

Rise now in the power of the woman! Rise now in the power of our men! The world cries in hunger and darkness! We shall fight! We shall feed!

In the name of our ages of anguish! In the name of the curse and the slant! By the strength of our sorrow we conquer!

In the power of our pain! —Charlotte Perkins Gilman, in Progress-ive Woman.

The Things We Meant to Do.

When at some mystical best Life greets us with its first embrace, And with a blind but growing zest We learn the strange earth face to face.

Through orient clouds we love to trace A shining pathway in the blue, Where gods inspire our eager chase To do the things we meant to do.

At noontide on the sunlit crest The zenith glow subdues our pace. But still that vision of the best Blots out the petty things and base.

The hurrying byways interlace. Pale, broken dreams the wayward strew: Too swift the hours, too strait our case, To do the things we meant to do.

The shadowy islands of the west Grow rich with day's declining grace. They proffer us the cup of rest— The guerdon of a hard won race.

There is no lovelier dreaming place. And yet our restless souls would sue: Grant us, oh, gods, a little space To do the things we meant to do.
